Reports.

The British steamer United Service reports passing the P.M.S.S. Co.'s steamer China, off Turnabout on the 22nd about 1 P.M., and having strong and steady monsoon throughout the passage.

The British bark Medina reports having left Nagasaki on the 15th November, experienced fine weather and light N.E. winds, which freshed as Southing was made, until when about 50 miles off the Formosa Channel, then increasing to a gale with heavy sea, and hazy obscure weather. On the 20th instant, the ship's position at noon was lat. 23.49 N., and long. 120.15 E., at 15 P.M. discovered the Pescadores Islands bearing East distant about 5 miles, hauled the ship S.S.W. a little before 2 P.M., from off the fore yard a rock right ahead, distant about one mile and a half, was discerned, and broken water on both bows; hauled to the wind immediately on the starboard tack, ship under double-reefed topsails, foresail, and fore top-mast staysail; shortly after felt the ship strike the bottom twice or thrice, at this time the ship was sailing in a narrow Channel, with broken water on each side, the Channel narrowing withal; sound the pumps and found 17 inches of water in the well, rigged both pumps without delay, the ship must have touched on the tail of a shoal, the sea running high, short, and confused after passing clear of all broken water; squared away our former course, keeping the pumps going until morning; on Sunday the 21st at 8 A.M., finding the leak rather to increase, determined to haul up for Hongkong, sighted Breaker Point on the 22nd, and arrived at noon of the 23rd.

The Daily Press.

HONGKONG, NOVEMBER 24TH, 1869.

IT certainly seems rather surprising that at the very time when H.E. the GOVERNOR deems it desirable to declare that the office of the Registrar-General is daily becoming of more importance, Mr. LISTER, who has been for some time employed in it, should be removed, and placed in the Harbour Master's Department. It is generally understood that the student interpreters were intended specially for such work as requires a thorough knowledge of Chinese, and it was not felt to be very incongruous that they should be advanced by means of appointments in the Registrar-General's Office, though doubts were justifiably felt with respect to the rapidity of the promotion granted. Mr. LISTER's qualifications for the Department in which he was recently employed were certainly nothing very astounding; but, at least, he possessed some knowledge of Chinese, and is now acquainted with the routine of the office. Under such circumstances, it seems really astonishing why he should suddenly be placed in a totally different department, requiring totally different qualifications. Let any impartial man say whether he believes Mr. LISTER possesses any special qualification to entitle him to the office of Assistant Habour Master—excepting the very simple one of wanting an appointment when there happens to be a vacancy. Mr. LISTER, with his confreres, Messrs. RUSSELL and WODEHOUSE, figure on the Colonial List as Interpreters in the Colonial Secretary's Department. How many times during, say the last two years, has either of the first named two gentlemen been near the Colonial Secretary's Office, or performed any work in connection with it? It is notorious that they have had their attention entirely in other directions, and yet as Interpreters they are both paid £400 per annum from the Colonial Secretary's Department.

It is of course not to be expected that young gentlemen of education will come out to a colony such as this, and devote themselves to the study of a difficult language, like Chinese, without having fair opportunity of advancement, more, in fact, than is offered by the salaries attaching to their posts merely as interpreters. It would be reasonable and just that they should be fairly paid, and no sensible man would object to higher salaries than those now given being granted to men who were thoroughly efficient. But it is absurd to endeavour to remedy one mistake by another. If there is anything in which the adage that "a little knowledge is a dangerous thing," is true it is in the responsible position of a Chinese Interpreter, and it is absurd to expect that the Interpreting of the Colony will be properly performed, when one Interpreter is giving muddly decisions on the magisterial bench, and another is engaged in the position of Assistant Harbour Master. It would certainly be far more to the interests of the Colony to have one good interpreter at twice the money than two bad ones at the lower figure. Thus, if instead of half the services of the Acting Magistrate and the Acting Assistant Harbour Master, costing for their Interpretorial work £800 per annum, one gentleman having a thorough knowledge of Chinese was appointed at that sum, it is reasonable to suppose that the interpreting required would be far more efficiently performed, while certainly some more suitable selections could be made for the posts of Acting Magistrate and Acting Assistant Harbour Master. The whole system by which acting appointments are filled up, requires to be overhauled. The rule adopted everywhere else, but in Hongkong, is for a man to be appointed from the Department where the vacancy occurs, but here the Student Interpreters are made dunnage for every vacancy that arise. The only wonder is that one of them has not been appointed Acting Governor, Chief-Justice, or Attorney-General.

THE GARRISON THEATRICALS.

The performance at the Garrison Theatre last evening was a success, and a well filled house manifested by frequent and hearty applause the appreciation of the acting. Lieutenant-Colonel Milles, and Mrs. Milles, and many officers of the H.M. 75th Regiment were present and remained until the conclusion. "Jenny Foster, the Sailor's Child," was extremely well put on the stage, and the scene of the Churchyard and Mary Foster's Grave, was most creditable to the painter for its simplicity and reality, the absence of prompting, and the readiness with which the cue was taken, showed in the first representation, that rehearsals had been frequent and the actors painstaking. Messrs. Whalley, Clayton, Green, and E. Dennis as Mrs. Foster, the aged widow, played with great honesty. Mr. Clayton, as the hero of the piece acted the "Tar" uncommonly well, simply because he did not travestie the character. The Negro Songs were Negro Songs according to stage conventionalisms. Messrs. Green and Kelly are fratres ambo, but the applause of the audience and their greed for repetition, was a character not by any means likely to benefit the corps dramatique. Of "Betsey Baker, or, Too Attentive by Half," and all those whose services it put in requisition, nothing need be said; the whole piece was acted with great spirit, and the denouement was in reality a very clever conception on the part of all engaged. This laughable farce, in manager's phrase, "will run." Mrs. Wallet was ably assisted throughout by Mrs. Fawell, and by Mr. E. Dennis who in the first piece took a female part. Without any exceptions, the company were well up in their rôles.

The Chancellor of the Exchequer is frequently to be seen practising on a bicycle near his residence in the country.

A disgraceful outrage has been perpetrated at Bruun by a Count Hompesch, who formerly served in the Austrian Lancers. The Count, in descending from his carriage, ran against a little boy who was walking with his father and mother, and gave him a sharp blow with his whip. Herr Muller, the father of the child, remonstrating in rather warm language, the Count replied by shooting him in the cheek.

SINGULAR RECOVERY OF A DIAMOND RING.—A young lady while searching the beach at Ilfracombe for "common object on the seashore," lately descried peeping out of the sand what proved to be a valuable diamond mourning ring, with an inscription in memory of the late Lord Rolle. Inquiries were instituted, and it was ascertained that the ring formerly belonged to Mr. Drake, now deceased, who was connected with the Rolle family, and was lost by Mrs. Drake about thirteen years ago on the beach at Ilfracombe. It having been given into her charge by her husband when he was boating on a stormy day, she had placed it outside her glove, and in the hurry of landing it had slipped off, and a careful search for it, which was instituted at the time, was without success.

CRICKET MATCH.

A match at Cricket was played on Saturday last, on the Mint Cricket Ground, between "C" and "E" Companies, 75th Stirlingshire Regiment. The wickets were pitched at 10 A.M. "E" Company having won the toss, sent "C" Company to the wickets, to the bowling of Privates Linfield and Hewlett. In the first innings "C" Company made 75 runs, by careful play, "E" Company making 96 runs. In the second innings of "C" Company, Drummer Bailey contributed 43, and Lance Corporal James Fitzgerald 54, by some excellent hard hitting, seldom seen amongst amateur players. Private Ranby's score of 27 for "E" Company was well played and gave the field great trouble. The return match will be played next week. Subjoined is the score:—

Nos. 369, 207 and 861, was found guilty, first, of being drunk and disorderly in the street, about 6.30 p.m. of the 22nd instant, and also of having unlawfully assaulted and beaten and resisted the police in the execution of their duty, for which he was fined $10, or, in default, one month's imprisonment with hard labour.

BREACH OF ORDINANCE.

Upon the complaint of Mr. John Burton, Inspector of Markets, Tang-a-tye, the master of shop No. 14, Central Market, was convicted of a breach of Ordinance No. 9, of 1858, section 15, and sentenced to pay a fine of $25 or, in default, one month's imprisonment. "Every lessee, or tenant, as soon as may be after being accepted as such, and before entering into possession of any such building, shall furnish the Surveyor-General with a written statement of the names of all persons, if any, having any copartnery entered with him in his business, to be carried on thereon, or incidentally thereto, and also the impression of the seal (if any) of his shop or firm."

NUISANCE.

Upon the complaint of Mr. Hazlett, Inspector of Nuisances, the occupant of the top-floor, in No. 9, D'Aguilar-street, was convicted of having unlawfully hung out wet clothes to dry, projected from the window of his house over the public side path, to the annoyance of persons passing thereon, and fined $1, or, in default, three days' imprisonment.

INDECENT PLACARD.

On the information of the Honorable the Registrar-General, Protector of Chinese, Sun-king-wan, of the Man-tuk-tong shop, No. 9, Mercer-street, third floor, was convicted of having unlawfully and wickedly uttered, published, and posted a certain obscene and indecent placard in the public street, (the contents of which bore great resemblance to many advertisements in English and American newspapers.) The defence offered was having lived but a short time in the Colony, ignorance that it was any offence to publish such documents, and never having heard that it was such in Chinese Law. Fined $50, or, three months' imprisonment.

FIGHTING.

Joao dos Santos and Severino Fernandos, Manila seamen, belonging to the Formosa, were charged by Mahomed, I.P.C. 186, with behaving in a disorderly manner, by fighting in the Queen's-road Central, at 10 a.m. of the 23rd instant, being drunk, the first defendant having an open knife in his hand, with which, apparently, he was trying to stab the second defendant. First defendant fined $5, or 14 days' imprisonment, the second defendant fined $1, or three days' imprisonment.

BEFORE C. MAY, ESQ.

THE EXTORTION CASE.

Further evidence was taken in the above case, adjourned from the 12th instant.

Mr. Charles Osmund, clerk of the Registrar-General's office, stated that from information received, he went with his informant, a Chinaman, on the 6th or 7th November, to a house in Queen's Road, corner of East Street, where a number of hawkers usually take their stand. He saw the prisoner, Chu-a-wing, there, but he did not do anything. On the 15th he went again with an informant to a house near Tai ping shing market, and saw the defendant pass along the street, defendant went from one hawker to another quickly, to one of those hawkers, he, the defendant, put out his hand, and saw a movement from the hand of the hawker, but could not discern if anything was given.

Lee-a-muk, hawker, stated on the 20th September, he had his stand near the Joss house, Hollywood-road, and was driven away by police. Two or three days after, prisoner, altogether unknown to him, came and said, "give me eight or ten cash a day, and I will take it to the constable, so that he will not turn you away." He agreed to pay the sum demanded, and after that time he paid ten cash each succeeding day to the prisoner, who received money from other hawkers, and thought it a general thing. He believed that prisoner had arranged with the police, because after he commenced paying him the ten cash a day, he and the other hawkers were allowed to sell their goods without being driven about, and he thought it a good thing to get quiet for a few cash a day. He did not always give ten cash, sometimes he gave six, other times eight cash. He never paid any cash to any other man than the prisoner, who told him that the money was to be given to the General Inspector.

The case was here adjourned to 10 a.m. to-morrow (this day).

COURT OF SUMMARY JURISDICTION.

BEFORE J. C. WHYTE, ESQ.

LANE AND OTHERS v. T. H. P. KENNAN.—This was an action to recover $377.57, balance due on a promissory note, dated September 9th, 1869. The sum of $100 had been paid on account. Mr. Fairbairn represented the plaintiffs, and proved the debt.

The defendant, who had been arrested on a capias, did not appear, and judgment accordingly went by default, together with costs of capias. Mr. Caldwell appeared for the plaintiffs.

A. NICAISE v. YEN-TAK.—This was an action to recover $101. The plaintiff is master of the Belgian ship Frederick, and the defendant is master of the junk Yee-lee. The present action is brought to recover the above damages, for injury done to a small pleasure boat, belonging to the plaintiff, and which was made fast astern of his ship. It appears that on the night of November 13th, or more properly at 2 o'clock on Sunday morning, the Yee-lee, bound from the Capsingmoon pass into the harbour, ran across the stern of the Frederick, and came into collision with the boat in question, doing her very material damage. It was a bright moonlight night, and the junk after running into the boat went across the steamboat channel and anchored. Next morning she got under-weigh, and stood into an anchorage near the Canton steamboat landing. During all this time she had been watched by those on board the Frederick; and in the morning after she got under weigh the first mate went on board.

Mr. Caldwell appeared for the plaintiff, and Mr. Hazeland for the defendant.

M. Burgess, the chief mate of the Frederick, deposed that about 2 o'clock on the morning of Sunday, he was awakened by some one on the deck of his vessel running aft and shouting out. He went on deck, and saw a junk just passing the stern which had run into the small sail boat astern, and was still holding on her course. He saw her anchor on the other side of steamboat channel about a quarter of a mile away from the ship. Witness remained on deck until 3 o'clock, and then went below, leaving orders with the man on watch to keep an eye on the junk, and report if she moved. At five next morning witness was on deck and saw the junk getting under weigh, when he immediately manned his boat and went on board of her. On the port bow of the junk was found a dent in the moulding, several patches of white paint, and on the anchor fluke was also found white paint, together with a number of splinters of teak wood. He called the attention of the Captain of the junk to these marks.

Healy, a seaman employed on board the Frederick, was on watch on the night of the occurrence. He saw the junk coming too close and hailed her to "keep off," but she kept on her course and came in collision with the small boat. The junk afterwards kept her course, and anchored on the opposite side of the steamboat channel. Witness saw the junk remain there until 4 o'clock, when he went below. There were no other junks anchored near, and no other junks came so near the Frederick during the remainder of the night.

P.C. No. 43, who was stationed on board the Frederick, came on deck when the collision took place, and remained there until 8 o'clock the next morning. The junk that ran into the small sail boat anchored on the opposite side of the steamboat channel, and remained there until about five o'clock, when she got under weigh and stood closer in to the shore. This was the same junk boarded by the first mate. In the afternoon witness went on board the junk, and observed the same marks of white paint on the bow, and the mark in the moulding.

Mr. Armstrong, a shipwright, employed by Mr. McDonald, deposed that he had examined the small boat in question. She was much damaged, it would cost about $75 to repair her. He had offered to repair her for this amount. The boat was new, and must have cost between $200 and $300.

On behalf of the defendant it was contended that the collision did not take place with the Yee-lee junk. At the time the junk was said to have run into plaintiff's boat, the Yee-lee was in the Capsingmoon pass. It was not denied that a collision had taken place, but it must have been with some other junk than defendants.

The defendant was then put into the box and deposed that he was on his junk, on the night of November 13th, bound from Shekloong to Hongkong. About midnight the Yee-lee was just outside the Capsingmoon pass, and about two hours after midnight he was passing the Gilaobins' station in the pass. He arrived at his anchorage about six the next morning. Ran into no boat, nor did he came into collision with anything. After his arrival some foreigners came on board his junk. There was a mark in the port bow of his junk, but it was an old mark, caused by a cargo boat running into him at Shekloong. There were no marks of white paint. There might have been something white on the anchor, but it must have been salt. Did not change anchorage after he came in.

The accountant of the junk and a passenger both deposed that they were awake at four o'clock in the morning, and the junk was then passing the Lee Kum station, in the Capsingmoon pass. She arrived at her anchor about six o'clock.

After hearing the case at considerable length, his Honor remarked that he was not exactly sure whether he was legally justified in giving damages in an instance of collision such as this, but he thought the fact of there being no man on watch on board the junk would be a sufficient reason for awarding damages, providing the plaintiff had proved his case. In the present instance, the evidence was of a conflicting nature, and he must accordingly decide the case upon the point as to whether or not the plaintiff had made out his case. He was not satisfied with the evidence that had been produced on behalf of the plaintiff, and it was not sufficient to convince him that the damages done to plaintiff's boat was caused by the Yee-lee junk. The evidence was to a great extent, if not entirely, circumstancial, and he could not upon it feel justified in finding that the defendant was liable. That there was a collision there could be no doubt, but that it was by defendant's junk was not at all probable. The marks of paint, &c., which were found on defendant's junk were not sufficient to induce him to award judgment on this evidence only. The evidence for the defendant, which was consistent throughout, was contradicted, and, although he was inclined to give every weight to European evidence as compared with Chinese, still upon the whole case, and taking all the circumstances into consideration he did not feel that he was justified in finding that defendant's junk caused the damage. There would be judgment for the defendant with costs.

Mr. Hazeland, on behalf of defendant, applied under Ordinance 6, of 1845, for costs of capias. He thought this was a case of vexatious arrest, and had been brought about without sufficient cause. He did not ask for compensation, but merely for the costs of giving bail, &c.

His Honor said he did not look upon the case at all in that light. He thought plaintiff had very good cause of applying for a capias. The case was one of mistaken identity entirely. He could give no compensation, but by costs he meant such costs as the plaintiff would have been entitled to, provided the decision had been in his favor.

LAI-A-KAI v. SAMUEL NORTHCOTT.—This was an action to recover $5, for a painting. The defendant, who is a seaman on the Princess Charlotte, said he had given the plaintiff an I.O.U., according to agreement, payable at the end of the year. The painting cost $4, and the I.O.U. was for $5.

His Honor said he must dismiss this summons under the statute, which precluded any action being brought for a sum less than $30 against a private in H.M. service.

C. J. GAUPP AND OTHERS v. C. M. SENNA.—An action to recover $12. When called this case was announced as settled.

CHUN-A-MOO v. G. A. MEARS.—This was an action to recover $5.02, for wages. Both parties are shoemakers. It appears that some time since the defendant came to the plaintiff and requested him to obtain for him a number of workmen. Ten were sent, these were employed for one day, and the second day only five were employed. The present claim is accordingly made up of the wages of these 15 men, at the rate of $1 for three men.

The defendant denied that he had employed the plaintiff. He asked him to send some good workmen, and ten were sent, but only five of them were employed for one day. The second day they left, as they could not get along with the other workmen whom he employed. He admitted the sum of $1.75 to be due to the plaintiff, but no agreement was made as to the rate of wages to be paid.

His Honor said some of the workmen turned out to be poor workmen, and had spoiled some of the work. He would, therefore, give judgment for the plaintiff for $3, and he advised him in future to be more careful in doing business with the defendant.

DAVID MILLS v. WING-TYE.—This was an action to recover $18. The plaintiff is a private in the 75th Regt., and the defendant is a jeweller and watchmaker. It appeared that some time since plaintiff purchased from the defendant a silver watch for $13, the same being guaranteed for one year. Since the purchase, the watch had proved to be far from what it was represented, and would not go for more than twelve hours. Plaintiff went a number of times to the defendant and complained, but could get no satisfaction. The present summons was accordingly brought to recover the value of the watch, which plaintiff wished to return.

Defendant said the watch had been abused, and had not had proper care taken of it. The watch was in perfect order when sold, and the hair spring was now broken. He was willing to take the watch and repair it, but he had not $13 at present to return.

His Honor said he thought it was very singular that a jeweller could not raise the sum of $13. He would order the watch to be examined, and if it was found to be in bad condition, the defendant must take it back and refund the $13; otherwise plaintiff must keep the watch. Case adjourned for a week.

The Prince of Wales has been elected to the rank of Past Grand Master in the order of Freemasons. An amendment was proposed at the meeting at Freemasons' Hall that he should be elected patron of the order, but this was almost unanimously rejected.

SUFFOCATED WHILE BATHING.—A young miner, named William Eslick, aged 28, was bathing in the sea at St. Agnes, Cornwall, when he attempted to swim across an inlet with a boy of 13 on his back. When in deep water the boy became frightened, and grasped Eslick so tightly round the mouth and throat that he could not be shaken off. Before assistance could reach the struggling man he sank and never rose again. It is supposed that he was suffocated before he sank. The boy was saved.

WILFUL NEGLECT.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE "DAILY PRESS."

SIR,—With regard to the case of the two seamen belonging to the barque Emulation, and the decision of the Marine Magistrate on the 20th instant thereon, it may be observed that if the captain of the Lois had hailed the Emulation, and said, "there's a boat under your bows," whatever was going on would have been discovered; his silence is unaccountable and most extraordinary.

With regard to the charge, clause CCXLIV. of the Merchant Shipping Act, lays down that: "Upon the commission of any of the offences enumerated in the last preceding section, an entry shall be made in the official log book * * * * if she be at the time in port, and the offender shall either be furnished with a copy of such entry, or have the same read over distinctly and audibly to him, and may thereupon make such reply thereto as he thinks fit, and in any subsequent legal proceedings the entries hereinbefore required shall, if practicable, be produced and proved, and in default of such production or proof, the court hearing the same may at its discretion refuse to receive evidence of the offence."

But yet further, clause CCLXXXII makes it obligatory, upon "every master of a ship, for which an official log book is hereby required, to make, or cause to be made therein, entries of the following matters, that is to say, (2.) Every offence committed by any member of his crew for which it is intended to prosecute, or to enforce a forfeiture, or to exact a fine, together with such statement concerning the reading over such entry, and concerning the reply (if any) made to the charge as hereinbefore required."

The clause CCXLIII to which reference is made in your comment, in its 5th section runs thus:—"For continued wilful disobedience to lawful commands, or continued wilful neglect of duty, he shall be liable, (that is, seaman or apprentice,) to imprisonment for any period not exceeding twelve weeks, with or without hard labour, and also, at the discretion of the court, to forfeit for every twenty-four hours continuance of such disobedience or neglect, either a sum not exceeding six days' pay, or any expenses which may have been properly incurred in hiring a substitute."

The latter part of the section clearly and most explicitly explains of what a wilful disobedience, or continued wilful neglect, is composed.

In Summary Proceedings, where in the person of one Justice of the Peace there are vested the powers usually exercised by two Justices, the Magistrate should remember that he is, first, in the exercise of the duties of a jury, and afterwards, awarding as a Judge. On this account the conviction should always be for the offence alleged in the information, complaint, or charge-sheet, and cannot go beyond the evidence. This is the oath of a Justice. In the case of the Emulation, only one defendant was placed by the Inspector, who took the Captain's charge, on the sheet, for neglect of duty. Finally, there was absolutely nothing in the evidence to shew wilful neglect, as defined by the Merchant Shipping Act.

Of any imputation of wilful embezzlement, (see section 8), the defendants were held by the Justice to be clear. Of what offence were they then held to be guilty in law, or is the Marine Magistrate a law unto himself?

COMMON SENSE.

Hongkong, 23rd November, 1869.

SIR E. HORNBY'S CHARGE TO THE JURY PANEL AT YOKOHAMA.

AGENT AND OWNERS.

I should now like to draw your attention to a subject closely connected with mercantile pursuits: the matter of agency. The cases which have come before me show that no subject is, in its legal aspect, less understood. An idea seems to prevail that an agent has necessarily all the power and authority of his principal—that the latter is in all cases bound by his acts, and not only is little or no care taken to ascertain the extent or nature of the agent's authority, but a species of general reputation appears to suffice. Now, the very first thing to do is, when dealing with an agent, to ascertain the nature and extent of his authority; if he declines to disclose this, either refuse to deal with him, or insist upon dealing with him as a principal, and then take the ordinary precautions which are necessary and common to all dealing. The case of the Osaka furnishes a pointed illustration of the folly and risk of engaging in transactions without first ascertaining whether the parties to them are in a position to do all they assume to do. Here is a ship sold by a firm as agents for the owner, under a power which had expired ere the sale took place; a very little inquiry would have shown that their agency had, quoad the authority to sell, ceased; and even supposing they had a right to consider themselves as still representing the owner, and acting in accordance with his wishes, yet, inasmuch as the Act of Parliament regulating the sale and transfer of vessels prescribes particulars, which they were not in a position to fulfil, they, in attempting to effect a sale, irregular as it was, and void in law, undertook immense responsibility, which might have resulted in serious pecuniary loss. The formal agency-power to sell the vessel had expired, no informal or implied agency, to be collected from a mass of correspondence, could supply its place, the Act of Parliament being clear and positive as to how and in what manner vessels are to be sold. Yet in the face of this the firm was willing to, and actually did, give a bond in a large amount to produce a document which they had no control over, and which, as it turned out, they were unable to produce, and to incur the risk of a suit in Equity on the part of the purchaser, for the specific performance of a contract which they must have known, they had no power to perform, or an action at Law at the same suit to recover heavy damages for the breach of contract. To neither of these suits would the firm in question have had any defence, nor to the bond which was competent to the Consul to put in suit. And when, to the annoyance of litigation would have been added the costs, the expediency of exercising little caution becomes self-evident.

Nor is the mischief confined to the agent; it extends equally and sometimes with even more fatal consequences to the party with whom he is dealing. In the case under consideration, the purchaser not only might have lost the article he bought and paid for, but he might also have lost his purchase money. Curiously enough, the mischief of acting without authority arose twice in this single case. Disputes having arisen from absence of sufficient authority on the part of those who sold the vessel, it was determined to refer them to arbitration, which was accordingly agreed on and sanctioned by the Court. But by whom was the agreement to refer assented to? By an agent who had no authority to submit the questions between his principal and the other side! Hence a great deal of time was lost, and considerable expense incurred, which the slightest enquiry as to the powers of the agent would have avoided. Nor is this all. The vice in the original proceedings seems to have run through the whole case, and cropped up at every turn, and may not improbably still crop up at any future step. The original suit was converted into an arbitration, which failed; then the substituted agent of the ship-owner was sued personally, and although he did not plead that he was only an agent, a portion of the decision was founded on the fact that, however liable his principal might be, he, the agent, personally, decidedly was not; and this third act in this drama of litigation fell dead upon the stage.

CUSTOMS OF TRADE.

Another matter on which I should wish to touch has reference to what is called the "Custom of the Port" or the "Custom of the Trade." More than once, in the course of the cases that I have been called on to decide my attention has been drawn to these so-styled customs. I have never been able exactly to understand what is really meant by these terms, but witnesses have been called and I have been favoured with their views of the subject. I need hardly say that they have been generally contradictory. I have, however, heard enough and seen enough to feel satisfied that a great mistake exists as to the value of these so-called "Customs," and it seems to me advisable that I should recall to your recollection that "Custom," to be of any value, must be first "reasonable"; secondly clear and without doubt; thirdly, of universal application, and universally admitted—that is to say, at least in the Port; and fourthly, that they should be notorious to all who can by any possibility be affected by them. I often hear it said that the Chamber of Commerce in this or the other Port has declared so-and-so, and this on matters affecting not only the interests of Chambers, but of others not members, and who know nothing of the rules and regulations framed, who have never been consulted, but who are nevertheless to be held bound by them.

Again, I have been told that in certain trades, there are certain customs: to give an instance, "not to examine articles bought by sample," and this, it been urged upon me, not being the "custom," the seller is held responsible until the purchaser, to the fourth or fifth generation as it were, thinks fit to examine the goods he has bought. This, if it is a "custom," —and I may here remark, it has never been proved to my satisfaction to be one —is decidedly a bad one; for it is against law, against reason, and against what I am tempted to call the morality of Trade, and must inevitably lead to litigation; and any conduct any custom, which incites to, or is provocative of, litigation, is as bad as bad can be. Do not think I intend to speak disrespectfully of mercantile usages or customs, but to entitle them to respect, they must be reasonable, such in short, as recommend themselves by their evident utility and importance to the mind of all persons engaged or interested in mercantile pursuits—they must also be generally or universally admitted and acted on—any practical dissent from them, any evidence that shows that they are not universally admitted or acted on, is fatal to them. And, moreover, they cannot be proclaimed and acted on by one section of the commercial community, which is to be benefitted by their adoption, unless consented to by that and other sections whose interests they may, or are calculated to affect.

TRIAL TRIP OF THE NEW P. & O. STEAMER HINDOSTAN.

The new screw steamship Hindostan, built and engineered by Messrs. C. A. Day and Co., of the Northam Ironworks, at Southampton, for the Peninsular and Oriental Company, was on October 6th taken to Stokes Bay for a trial of her speed on the measured mile. There was a moderate easterly breeze blowing, with a smooth sea, the barometer standing at 30.55. The true mean speed attained was 14 592 knots per hour, with a 30lb. pressure of steam, vacuum 21, and the engines making 55 revolutions per minute. The engines, which are of 600 horse-power nominal, indicated 3,194 during the trial. She had on board a total weight of coals, water, and stores, of 734 tons, and her draught of water was 16ft. 2in. forward, and 17ft. 8in. aft, the mean draught being 16ft. 11in. The machinery worked with the greatest ease throughout the day, and all on board expressed the most perfect satisfaction with the successful result of the trial. The following are the leading dimensions of the Hindostan:—Length between perpendicular, 349ft. 10in.; length on loadwater line, 344ft. 4in; length over all, 382ft. 8in.; breadth moulded, 42ft. 3½in.; depth of hold 33ft. tonnage, builders' measurement, 3,086 tons; and engines of 600 horse power. She has accommodation for 176 first and 55 second class passengers, and will be able to carry 800 tons of coals and 1,400 tons of cargo. The hull of the vessel is built with best Staffordshire iron below the water-line and steel above, and every part of the ship bears unmistakeable evidence of the excellence of the materials and workmanship employed in her construction. The Hindostan was in charge of Captain Robert Curling, who is appointed as her commander, and she will shortly be dispatched to India, where she is to be employed in the company's mail service.

SCHOOLS IN SINGAPORE.

The Committee appointed by the Legislative Council, to report upon the amount to be placed in the Estimates for 1870, for the purposes of education, made their report on Tuesday. The Committee appear to have done their work as thoroughly as the returns furnished them would permit, and from the tables accompanying the report, it will be seen that the recommended increase in the grants to some of the schools are not disproportionate to those already received by the more favoured ones. The Christian Brothers' School in Singapore, has received a grant of $500 per annum, although the number of pupils receiving instruction there are 215, against 282 pupils in the Raffles Institution, which enjoys the very liberal sum of $3,000.82 annually. But this is not all. The Brothers' School is essentially a charitable institution, and, notwithstanding the heavy disadvantages it has laboured under,—the poverty of the community upon whom it has to depend for support, and the meagre pittances upon which its teachers have been obliged to subsist,—it has succeeded in proving itself one of the very best schools in the place, and at the same time has not refused admittance and maintenance to destitute children, or education to those for whom they have no hope of remuneration. The same may be said of its prototype at Penang, and we trust the recommendations of the Committee with regard to these schools will receive the approval of the Council. The Sisters' schools, however, both here and in Penang, are, if anything, deserving of even more favour than the Committee have shown them. Were the Government subsidy to be proportioned to the amount of good they do, then these two establishments would come in largely for its bounty. Homeless orphan girls, Chinese, Malay, Tamil, or Eurasian, its matters not what their caste or colour, are readily admitted to shelter within their walls, where they are taught not merely to become Christians, but with the usual studies in other schools, also the more useful arts, so that, when they emerge, they may be able to become useful members of society. From these, many of young Eurasians and others select their wives; and thus, these schools contribute most essentially to the moral and intellectual advancement of the people. We might say much more in their behalf, but believe their claims upon the public generosity are so widely recognized that the task is needless. It is earnestly to be hope, however, that sectarian prejudices will not influence our Legislators in discussing the matter, but that as schools are so liberally endowed for the education of Mahommedan children, and the other educational institutions receive such a fair share of Government patronage, a proportionate grant should be made in favour of the Roman Catholic section of the community.—Straits Times, Nov. 4th.

EXTRAORDINARY CHARGE AGAINST THE POLICE.

A police inspector and a constable of the C division were summoned, at the Marlborough-street Police-court yesterday, for a violation of duty in entering a refreshment-house in Jermyn-street, kept by a woman named Rose Burton, after it was closed at one o'clock in the morning of the 28th of September. The complainant had, it appeared, been convicted of harbouring prostitutes at unseasonable hours, but is appealing against the conviction, the police in the meantime exercising, it was alleged, a most unnecessary, illegal, and offensive surveillance of the premises. The particular act charged was that at two o'clock in the morning in question, the complainant being in her room alone, and partly undressed, preparing for a bath, the defendants rushed up stairs, endeavoured by every possible means to obtain entry into the room, and, because this was refused, remained on the stairs until six o'clock. The magistrate said the case was of considerable magnitude. Malice against the complainant in going to her bedroom had been repudiated, but, when he saw the desperate eagerness evinced to convict a woman because she had been convicted before, he must look very closely into the law to see if there was any authority for the defendants conducting themselves as they had done. The bedroom of this woman had been invaded under the belief, as alleged, that somebody was there. The Act of Parliament was exceedingly wide. The words in the 23rd Vict., cap. 27, sec 18, were: "It shall be lawful for all constables and officers of police, when and so often as they shall respectively think proper, to enter into all houses licensed as refreshment-houses, and into and upon the permises thereto belonging." The whole question was whether the coal cellar was to be deemed part of the premises, and whether the police were empowered by the Act to go every hour into the premises; whether, in fact, they were entitled to go into every room at any time, whether females were in bed or not, to go poking about to find if any one were there. He did not think they were. It was said the police had been duped by persons being concealed on the premises during these visits; but no evidence had been produced to that effect. The only circumstance the police wanted to discover was whether some person other than the complainant was in the bath-room or not; and, had they made the discovery, it was a question whether such person had not a right to be there. The object of the Act was to prevent the meeting together of prostitutes; but, after the house was closed and the inmates had gone to bed, it was a strong thing to say that the police, having gained an entrance, should claim the right to remain all night. This was important to clear up, because it might be that an inspector was appointed to the district who was persecuting man, and who might think it was his duty to hunt down every person who might come under suspicion. No doubt the complainant had been convicted, and that it was proper for the police to look after the house; but then it was rather hard that she should be persecuted on that account. He would take time to consider the case, and would give his judgment in a fortnight.—Globe, October 8th.

INFANTICIDE.

The Star remarks that a score of infants have been picked up in the Fulham and Hammersmith districts of London alone within the last year—abandoned, the phrase is; and a police-constable associates the circumstance with the fact that there are advertisements in some newspapers offering temporary homes and an experienced nurse to ladies. The baby farmer is evidently in command of the situation. The experienced nurse and the rest of the hideous machinery by which the bad work is carried out moves as smoothly and as securely in our midst as though it were regarded from a simple Pekinese point of view. One is only surprised from the sort of verdicts given by juries in connection with this topic, that those who kill their infants or expose them to the chances of death take the trouble of hiding them in the byways. The juries do not wish to send women to the gallows for the crime, and with the dread of such a consequence dangling before their eyes shrink from giving their real judgment on the case. The law should be so reconstructed as to help them out of a difficulty which, as long as it continues, will render infanticide a comparatively safe crime; and so long as it is comparatively safe, just so long will the commerce of the baby farmer, including the journals she patronises and the customers who patronise her, flourish.

THE POPE'S PRETENTIONS.

Dr. Manning, in an important discourse delivered the other day at Kensington, puts into the mouth of the Pope the following plain statement of his pretensions:—"I will not and I cannot reconcile myself to Liberalism, progress, and modern civilization. Your progress means divorce: I maintain Christian marriage. Your progress means secular education; I maintain that education is intrinsically and necessarily Christian. You maintain that it is a good thing men should think as they like, talk as they like, preach as they like, and propagate what errors they please. I say that it is sowing error broadcast over the world. You say I have no authority over the Christian world, that I am not the vicar of the Good Shepherd, that I am not the supreme interpreter of the Christian Faith. I am all these. You ask me to abdicate, to renounce my supreme authority. You tell me I ought to submit to the civil power, that I am the subject of the King of Italy, and from him I am to receive instructions as to the way I should exercise the civil power. I say I am liberated from all civil subjection, that my Lord made me the subject of no one on earth, king or otherwise, that in His right I am sovereign. I acknowledge no civil superior, I am the subject of no prince, and I claim more than this—I claim to be the Supreme Judge and director of the consciences of men—of the peasant that tills the field and the prince that sits on the throne—of the the household that lives in the shade of privacy and the Legislature that makes laws for kingdoms. I am the sole last Supreme Judge of what is right and wrong." The world has long been acquainted with these pretensions but they have seldom, within late years, been put forward with greater candour and conciseness.—London and China Herald.

MISCELLANEOUS.

A man named Richard Lord, formerly a manufacturer near Rochdale, is in custody of the police of that town charged with swindling a Spotland manufacturing firm. He had duped a girl into marriage with him, and it was upon her discovery, after he had disposed of her savings, that he had a wife living, and that he was about to victimize another woman, that he was surrendered to the police, who had been looking for him for some time on the other charge.

A Fatal fire has taken place at Bayswater, in which seven lives were lost. The house in the occupation of a Mr. Totheridge, who was licensed to sell fireworks. A Mrs. Jack and her three sons lodged in the same house. A few minutes before three o'clock in the morning there was a loud explosion on the premises and in a few seconds every room in the house was on fire. Three young children of the proprietor, with Mr. Jack and her sons, were taken up dead, and Mr. Totheridge was so severely burned that he was removed to the hospital. It is stated that a large quantity of fireworks was on the premises at the time of the explosion.

INTERESTING ANTIQUARIAN DISCOVERY.—In the neighbourhood of Bala some workmen employed in recovering the earth which formed an oblong mound, came upon two large irregular stones, on removing which a rude coffin or tomb was disclosed, composed of four stones, and containing human remains. The bones are for the most part mouldered to fragments and dust, but the left thigh bone is in tolerable preservation, and is that of a man over six feet in height. The coffin was surrounded by a large quantity of charred bones, and the presumption is that the tomb is that of an ancient British warrior, and that the remains outside it are sacrificial. It is feared that in the absence of any supervision of the farm labourers engaged in the exhumation some curious relics have been abstracted.

A CASE FOR INVESTIGATION.—Mr. Nathan, a British subject, aged nineteen years, has been in prison at Milan ever since April last, upon no charge except that he was found travelling from Lugan, where his mother resides and where Mazzini was staying at the time; and also that upon the journey he was in company with a young man who was out with Garibaldi in the campaign of 1866. Upon these grounds, and none other, it is said, Mr. Nathan has been all the past six months immured in an Italian gaol, without trial, or even a statement of his offence. At the close of the last session, a question was asked upon the subject by Mr. Taylor, the member for Leicester, and the reply was, that the English Government had made application to the Government of Italy to have the prisoner relased on bail. Nothing, however, has come of that intervention.

ENGLISH AND CHINESE DICTIONARY, WITH THE
PUNTI AND MANDARIN PRONUNCIATION.
AN ANGLO-CHINESE DICTIONARY, by the Rev. W. LOBSCHEID, published at the Daily Press Office, Hongkong.

FOR scope and practical service this Work stands unrivalled. All the new words which the Chinese have of late years been compelled to coin to express the numerous objects in machinery, photography, telegraphy, and in science generally, which the rapid advance of foreign relations has imposed upon them, are here given in extenso. Each and every word is fully illustrated and explained, forming exercises for students of a most instructive nature. Both the Court and Punti pronunciations are given, the accents being carefully marked on the best principle hitherto attained. The typography displays the success of an attempt to make the Chinese and English type correspond in the size of body, thereby effecting a vast economy of space, achieving a clearness not previously attained, and dispensing with those vast margins and vacant spaces which have heretofore characterized Chinese publications.
The scope of the work is so great, and its utilitarian purposes so complete, that a reference to its pages enables a person who understands English to communicate effectively with natives who understand nothing but Chinese. In this respect the work will be found indispensable to all Europeans residing in China, and to the natives themselves it explains subjects fully, with which very few indeed of them are perfectly acquainted. To parties resident in England and interested in China it cannot but be invaluable occasionally.
It comprises upwards of two thousand large quarto pages.

F. W. MITCHELL,
Postmaster General.
General Post-Office,
Hongkong, 24th November, 1869.

It is hereby notified for general information, by order of His Excellency SIR RICHARD GRAVES MACDONNELL, that henceforward Book Packets, and Packets of Patterns or Samples of Merchandize, may be transmitted through the Post by the Mails made up to be forwarded both by the British Contract Packets and by Private Ships, between this Office and each Agency thereof in China and Japan, viz.: Canton, Swatow, Amoy, Foochow, Ningpo, Shanghai, Nagasaki, Hiogo, and Yokohama, and also between any two of these Agencies, at the following rates of postage, which must be paid in advance, viz.:—
Not exceeding 4 oz. ... 6 cents.
Above 4 oz., and not exceeding 8 oz. 12 "
" 8 " " 1 lb. 24 "
" 1 lb. " " 1½ " 36 "
Every additional ½lb. ... 12 "
Special attention is directed to the following rules and regulations, which will be strictly enforced:—
AS REGARDS BOOKS.
A Book Packet may contain any number of separate Books, Almanacks, Maps or Prints, and any quantity of paper, vellum or parchment (to the exclusion of letters whether sealed or open); and the Books, Maps, Paper, &c., may be either printed, written or plain, or any mixture of the three.
All legitimate binding, mounting or of a portion thereof, will be allowed, whether such binding be lose or attached; as also rollers in the case of prints, markers (whether of paper or otherwise,) in the case of Books, and in short whatever is necessary for the safe transmission of literary or artistic matter or usually appertains thereto.
Every Book packet must be either without a cover, or in a cover open at the ends or sides.
It must not contain any letter, open or sealed, nor any sealed enclosure whatever; the name and address of the sender is however not only permitted, but recommended, so that if the cover come off, or for any other reason the packet cannot be forwarded, it many be returned.
No packet must exceed two feet in length, breadth or depth, exceeding these dimensions it cannot be forwarded through the Post.
AS REGARDS PATTERNS.
They must not be of intrinsic value. This rules excludes all articles of a saleable nature, and, indeed, whatever may have a value of its own, apart from its mere use as a pattern; and the quantity of any material sent ostensibly as a pattern, must not be so great that it can fairly be considered as having on this ground an intrinsic value.
There must be no writing or marks other than the address of the person for whom the packet is intended, and that of the sender, a trade mark and numbers, and prices of the articles; otherwise the Packet will be detained, or forwarded charged an unpaid letter.
The Patterns must be sent in covers open at ends, so as to be easy of examination. Samples, however, of seeds, drugs, and so forth, which cannot be sent in open covers, may be enclosed in bags of linen or other material, tied at the neck; bags so closed that they cannot readily be opened, even although they be transparent, must not be used for this purpose. Non-compliance with this rule, will also subject the packet to be detained or forwarded as an unpaid letter.
The Packets, or the contents thereof, must not contain any inclosure, sealed or otherwise closed against inspection.
In all other respects the general regulations of the Book Post between Hongkong and the United Kingdom will apply to the Pattern Post. Under these regulations, in order to prevent any interruption to the regular transmission of letters, a Packet of Patterns may, when it is necessary, be kept back for the following Mail, by which, in the ordinary course, it would be forwarded.
The decision of the Postmaster-General as to the eligibility of any Packet, pattern, or sample contained therein, to be forwarded under these regulations, will be final and conclusive.
The rule which forbids the transmission through the Post of any article likely to injure the contents of the Mail Bags or Boxes, or the person of any Officer of the Post Office, is, of course, applicable to the Pattern Post; and a packet containing anything of the kind will be stopped, and not sent to its destination. Articles such as the following have been occasionally posted as Patterns, and have been detained as unfit for the Post, viz.: Metal boxes, porcelain and China, fruit, vegetables, bunches of flowers, cuttings of plants, spurs, knives, scissors, needles, pins, pieces of machinery, sharp pointed instruments, samples of metals, samples of ore, samples in glass bottles, pieces of glass, acids of various kinds, curry combs, copper and steel engraving plates, and confectionery of all kinds.
F. W. MITCHELL,
Postmaster General.
General Post Office,
Hongkong, 13th October, 1869.

It is hereby notified for general information, that under the Provisions of a Treasury Warrant which will come into operation on the 1st October next, correspondence addressed to Constantinople will be forwarded at the following reduced Rates of Postage, which must be paid in advance, viz.:—
FOR LETTERS:
20 cents each half-an-ounce weight.
FOR NEWSPAPERS, PACKETS OF PATTERNS, AND BOOKS:
2 cents each two ounces up to half-pound, and 8 cents every additional half-pound.

Amateur Professionals.

(Land and Water.)

That this age is an age of competition has become such a truism that no examples are needed to prove its applicability to every species of pursuit and every sort of industry that our ingenuity yet discovered. Every day it becomes more evident and more true that wherever anything is to be had for the trying there will be plenty of people to try for it. In the more serious business of life there are few, and there will every day be fewer. Who can boast that they have obtained either honour, glory, or emolument without having fought and conquered others in the race for it? That this spirit of rivalry and competition should have been a most powerful agent in the introduction of athletic exercises is most natural, and least to be wondered at; and it may be considered the cause as well as the effect of those numerous trials of bodily strength, skill, and endurance which now more than ever distinguish us as a nation. Upon the advantage and benefits to be derived from the introduction of such competition it is unnecessary now to enlarge, it is the danger which attends, or may attend upon the introduction of such violent competition among amateurs upon which we wish to say a few words. In the first place, then, it is evident that the more worth while it becomes to excel in any particular bodily exercise, the more necessary it will be for those who intend to excel to devote their energies and their time to it. With increased and extended competition comes the necessity of long practice and hard training, and in the more severe exercises, such as walking a long distance, running, the requisite amount of preparation is so great as to interfere very seriously with the business or occupation of amateurs who engage in them. It cannot be denied that a great many of our best amateur athletes are now men whose time is occupied during the best part of the day, and who have comparatively but a short time to devote to their training and daily practice. These are true amateurs. But that they would be compelled to yield the palm to men of inferior merit who could bestow more attention and time upon athletics, in fact, who could make more of a profession of it, is not to be doubted. This is satisfactorily proved by a comparison of the time made by amateurs and by professionals. The latter are not, naturally, superior, nor is there in the shorter races any great superiority in the time made by them; it is only in those cases where training is an important feature that they excel so greatly. Almost every year gives us a nearer approach made by amateurs upon professional time. But every step in this advance is made by the sacrifice of more and more time by the amateur to his training, and in fact by the conversion, more or less, of an amateur into a professional. It becomes now, therefore, a grave question for our consideration whether this semi-conversion of "gentlemen" into "players," of Osbaldestones into Deerfoots, can be effected without an injury to the former. It is very plausibly argued that the necessity of long training, and in fact of a semi-professional life, must deter many of the best men, and especially those of the higher classes, from engaging in athletics at all. Either the prize to be gained must be a very good one; the price of the sacrifice must be a high one, and high in honour as much as in intrinsic value, or the sacrifice will not be made by the best men, and the amateur pursuit of athletics will come into the hands of an inferior class in society. Among the ancient Greeks when the laurel crown of the victorious athlete was the proudest honour of the year, there could be little fear of a degeneracy in the candidates for it. In England at the present day perhaps the highest prize to be obtained by athletic prowess is the honour of rowing in the winning boat at the Oxford and Cambridge race. It is this honour and glory which keeps up the standard of university oarsmen at its full height. Many men, for the chance of a place in that boat, will give up their chance of honours in the schools, of a prize essay, or of a writership in India, and become one of our professional amateurs. Next to the boat-race the cricket match and the athletic sports attract the largest number of spectators, and are consequently the objects of the greatest ambition. Schoolmasters have long mourned over the growth of cricket as a rival of the more serious province of mental education, and Oxford dons complain bitterly of the growing taste for athletic sports of all descriptions. The evil, however, if evil it be, will necessarily, in all sports of actual competition, work its own cure. Where the sport is such that a great amount of time is necessary for a man to excel in it, then the best men will soon cease to affect it, unless the prize to be won is high enough to make the sacrifice worth his while. As long as the estimation of athletic prowess among amateurs remains no higher than it is at present, there is no fear of any considerable part of the upper ranks of society devoting themselves to a semi-professional life of training. At the public schools the cricket field and the running ... it will always number among their frequenters many of the best and most energetic of the boys. At the universities the same causes produce nearly similar results, although instances have not been wanting of good care from the Eton boat refusing to undergo the toils of rowing at Oxford or at Cambridge. But for grown men emancipated from school and university, and launched upon the business of life, it will require far higher inducements than any now offered to produce a first-rate field of starters for any race or contest. The interest shown by the public in athletics pur et simple, is shown by the attendance at the chief London meetings not to be at present anything very great. The amount of that interest will always regulate the standard of the competition; and as long as it remains at its present ebb we must be content either with real amateurs giving up but little of their attention and making considerably worse time than professionals, or with semi-professional amateurs doing the distance in first-rate time, but made up from a rank in society rather lower than that which has hitherto been present in the field. On the other hand, should the public interest and admiration make athletic sports a high subject of national emulation, should the Henley regatta ever come to rival the Olympic Games, and Lillie Bridge vie with the Campus Martius, there will no longer be occasion for schoolmasters to grumble at the rival charms of the field and the river. Physical education will be ranked as the equal ally and no longer the rebellious slave of mental culture; and we shall have taken another leaf out of the book of Plato's philosophy, and another lesson from his countrymen, already our acknowledged masters in poetry and art. To speculate as to the probability of the coming of such an age would perhaps be premature. The decadence of every species of professional sport is argued by many to be rather a sign of the probable rise than an omen for the downfall of the amateur branch of these sports. Now that the doom of the ring and the running-ground is sealed, that professional rowing is tottering apparently on its last legs, and that the knell of the turf is only waiting a short time to be sounded, it seems a difficult question in what direction the love of sport, innate in Englishmen, can turn itself if not towards amateur competitions. The failure of professional sport as a subject of betting speculation is no new thing. In Rome it was soon discovered that the only way of securing the honesty of a professional was to make him fight for his life, and even the slightest leniency shown to vanquished gladiators made this desperate class of professionals amenable to the influence of a bribe. It is not probable that we shall return to the age of gladiatorial shows, and the alternative would seem to be the extinction of professionals and of professional athletics. But there is vitality in the amateur "turf," still in its infancy as it is; and it might long subsist if once established as a bona-fide national sport.
